DISCUSSION: The nonimmigrant visa petition was denied by the Director, Nebraska Service Center, and is now before the Associate Commissioner for Examinations on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a transportation company. It desires to employ the beneficiaries as truck drivers for a period of four months. The Department of Labor determined that a temporary labor certification by the Secretary of Labor could not be made because the employer had not established a temporary need. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that the need for the services to be performed is temporary.

On appeal, the petitioner states that it is trying to show a seasonal need. The petitioner also stated that it complied with all the guidelines stipulated by the Department of Human Resources and supplied the Department of Labor with supporting documentation.

Section 101(a)(15)(H)(ii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii), defines an H-2B temporary worker as:

> ...An alien having a residence in a foreign country which he has no intention of abandoning, who is coming temporarily to the United States to perform other temporary service or labor if unemployed persons capable of performing such service or labor cannot be found in this country, but this clause shall not apply to graduates of medical schools coming to the United States to perform services as members of the medical profession....

Matter of Artee Corp., 18 I&N Dec. 366 (Comm. 1982), as codified in current regulations at 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(ii), specified that the test for determining whether an alien is coming "temporarily" to the United States to "perform temporary services or labor" is whether the need of the petitioner for the duties to be performed is temporary. It is the nature of the need, not the nature of the duties, that is controlling. See 55 Fed. Reg. 2616 (1990).

As a general rule, the period of the petitioner's need must be a year or less, although there may be extraordinary circumstances where the temporary services or labor might last longer than one year. The petitioner's need for the services or labor must be a one-time occurrence, a seasonal need, a peakload need, or an intermittent need. 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(ii)(B).

The petition indicates that the employment is seasonal and that its temporary need is recurring annually.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(ii)(B)(2) states that for the nature of the petitioner's need to be a seasonal need, the petitioner must establish that the services or labor is traditionally tied to a season of the year by an event or pattern and is of a recurring nature. The petitioner shall specify the period(s) of time during each year in which it does not need the services or labor. The employment is not seasonal if the period during which the services or labor is not needed is unpredictable or subject to change or is considered a vacation period for the petitioner's permanent employees.

The nontechnical description of the job on the Application for Alien Employment Certification (Form ETA 750) reads "a transportation technician will operate tractor and trailer combinations on long distance routes throughout the 48 states of the U.S.A. Also apart of the transportation technicians job will entail loading and unloading of trailers, strapping or chaining and load binding, tarping and tieing down of tarps, side kitting trailers, keeping true and correct logs in log book, also handling of bills of lading."

Form ETA 750 indicates that the dates of intended employment for the beneficiaries are for one year and that the beneficiaries will be paid a salary of $24,146. The petitioner's need for drivers for one year does not show that the services or labor is traditionally tied to a season of the year by an event or pattern. Distribution contracts, which are the basis of the petitioner's business, will always exist. Therefore, it is clear that the petitioner has a permanent need for workers in these positions. The petitioner has not shown that the nature of its need for truck drivers is temporary in nature.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1361. Here, the petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
